The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolution No. 231.

Whereas the following order and regulations are now in force, forbidding lobbying or attempts on the part of officers or employees in the executive branches of the Government to importune Congress or to attempt to influence its action, to wit:

EXECUTIVE ORDER.

WHITE HOUSE, January 31, 1902.

All officers and employees of the United States of every description, serving in or under any of the Executive Departments, and whether so serving in or out of Washington, are hereby forbidden, either directly or indirectly, individually or through associations, to solicit an increase of pay, or to influence or attempt to influence in their own interest any other legislation whatever, either before Congress or its committees, or in any way save through the heads of the Departments in or under which they serve, on penalty of dismissal from the Government service.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

REGULATIONS FOR THE GOVERNMENT OF THE NAVY OF THE UNITED STATES.

ART. 231. Combinations of officers for the purpose of influencing legislation, remonstrating against orders, or complaining of details of duty are forbidden; and no person shall delay obedience to an order for the purpose of making remonstrance or complaint.

ART. 232. All petitions, remonstrances, memorials, and communications from any officer or officers of the Navy or Marine Corps, whether on the active or retired list, addressed to Congress, or to either House thereof, or to any committee of Congress, on any subject of legislation relating to the Navy, pending, proposed, or suggested, shall be forwarded through the Navy Department, and not otherwise, except by authority of the Department. And

Whereas Senators and Representatives in Congress have lately and are now being importuned in order to influence legislation, in accordance with the following memorandum, which is being sent especially to officers and employees in the Navy Department, as follows:

"This is the short session of Congress, and with the exception of the appropriation bills none will receive consideration that do not command the interest and support of a large proportion of the Senators and Representatives. This bill has an excellent chance of being enacted into law at this session if each officer and midshipman will promptly and effectively do his part toward obtaining the interest and support necessary to success. Each officer and midshipman knowing that the bill, if enacted into law, would tremendously add to the efficiency of the personnel, should immediately write or telegraph the Senators and Congressmen representing his State and district, giving his own reasons in his own way for urging them to consider and act on the bill at this session of Congress. Each one should also write influential friends at home and urge them to write or telegraph their Senators and Congressmen to act at this session on the Navy personnel bill transmitted to Congress in a special message by the President on December 17. Urge them to protest against any delay. Also all local newspapers should be requested to aid in the fight."

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be, and is hereby, directed to investigate as to whether the foregoing order and regulations have been, or are being, violated by any officer or employee of his Department and to report the result of his investigation to Congress.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution? The Chair hears none, and it is before the Senate.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, as a member of the Committee on Naval Affairs I have not been neglected in the matter of importunities from various officers in connection with the so-called "personnel bill," which has been urged upon Congress for favorable consideration at the present session.

I want to ask the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE], the chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, if it is not a fact that all such importunities are calculated to delay or defeat legislation rather than to advance it?

Mr. HALE. Yes. I think, Mr. President, that Senators and Representatives, as soon as they learn that there is an organized effort to influence legislation in a particular direction, are rather naturally prejudiced against it instead of being impressed in its favor.

I should not have introduced the resolution had I not found myself beset by letters from all parts of the country in relation to the personnel bill. It is an important bill, which has been carefully considered, and should not be the subject of pressure by naval officers upon Senators and Members of the other House.

I had this morning a letter from somebody not in any way connected with the Navy, written from Philadelphia—some officer had probably written to him—who wants the bill passed at once, without delay. I was rather amused at the final suggestion of the letter:

For the dignity of our country it is also very important that Congress shall establish the grade of Vice-Admiral and authorize at least three officers of this grade.

I have no idea that the man who writes this letter from Philadelphia knows anything about that matter. The Military Committee has recently reported in favor of abolishing the grade of Lieutenant-General, and yet this personnel bill, which certain line officers are endeavoring to crowd through Congress, provides for three new Vice-Admirals, and in five years there would be twelve or fifteen active and retired Vice-Admirals.

I think the committees in charge of this matter are fully competent to deal with it. The programme that I have embodied in my resolution is found in the Army and Navy Register of January 15, 1907, where it is referred to as an existing fact.

I do not think, Mr. President, that the older officers of the line of the Navy have gone into this business very much, if at all; I think it is the younger and more ambitious men who have an idea that they can influence legislation in this way. This is best described by what one of them says, that the line officers were going to light a fire under every Senator and every Member of the House of Representatives and oblige them to report this bill.

I do not want to discuss the bill. I do not know that the Secretary is aware of what is going on in contravention of the orders of the Department and of the express and complete and drastic order of the President. I fancy he does not know of it. He is a man of good administrative faculties who has had service in Congress, and I presume as soon as this condition is brought to his attention—and that is my object in presenting the resolution—he will put a stop to it, and that we shall be freed from the importunities of certain line officers, who propose, as is stated here, to extend this even to the cadets, the midshipmen at Annapolis, who are asked to write to all their Senators and Representatives, and to their friends throughout the country.

It is not the business, Mr. President, of the Executive Departments; it is the business of Congress to legislate. I have offered the resolution because I want the Secretary of the Navy to know what is going on, and I presume as soon as he learns what is going on in his Department we shall have no more of this.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, I have been greatly interested in the statement made by the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE], the chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, and I join with him in the expression of the hope that the passage of this resolution will put a stop to the grievance of which he complains.

At the same time, Mr. President, I will venture to say that, in my judgment, there are incongruities and there is some degree of injustice in the existing personnel law, and I expect that the committee of which the Senator from Maine is chairman will in due time, at the proper time, take the matter up and examine the question anew, and, if it is thought wise, recommend further legislation in reference thereto.

I simply want to express the hope that we may be relieved by the passage of this resolution of what has become to some of us a considerable burden. I presume I have answered twenty letters recently on that very subject, and many of them have come, as the one to which the Senator from Maine has alluded, from parties outside, not in any way connected with the Navy, indicating that they have been importuned to write such letters.

Mr. BACON. Mr. President, I do not wish to take issue with the learned Senators as to the particular bill which they have brought to the attention of the Senate by way of illustration of the alleged evil of which they complain and which this resolution is designed to correct. What, therefore, I shall say will have no special reference to that particular bill.

I do not, however, personally favor the passage of this resolution, because in so doing there would be an indorsement of the President's order which is quoted therein. It is not a simple matter of the convenience or inconvenience of Senators. Of course I recognize the inconvenience of importunities by those desiring legislation on different subjects, and I presume I have to bear my share of that inconvenience. But I have never thought that the President of the United States was justified in issuing orders prohibiting officers and men of the Army, and more particularly—even if there should be any peculiar reasons in regard to the Army and the Navy—more particularly as to civil officers of the Government, those in the Executive Departments, from bringing to the attention of Congress legislation which they thought was important for themselves or for the particular orders or classes to which they belong.

I regard the right of petition, Mr. President, as a fundamental right. It is a right which extends to every individual under the Government, high or low, military or civil, either in official or private life, and not excluding anyone bearing the relation of an employee to the Government.

It has been a long time since the right of petition has been one of serious debate in the Congress of the United States.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. BACON. I do.

Mr. HALE. Did the Senator note the language of the resolution and the citations which I have made? They are all in the direction of encouraging the right of petition and of presenting grievances and presenting suggestions for legislation in the form of petition. That is a right with which we never want to interfere. But for an association to combine, as stated in this paper, for the purpose of influencing Senators and Representatives by private correspondence and other ways is taking them away from their duties and is not the right of petition. It is in the interest of all these things coming to Congress by petition and being referred to the proper committees that the resolution is proposed. That is one of the things the resolution seeks to accomplish.

Mr. BACON. I do not regard the right of petition as being so limited as would be suggested by the remarks of the learned Senator from Maine. I regard the right of petition as one very broad and comprehensive in its character. It means the right of every individual to bring to the attention of Congress, in any manner he may see proper, not necessarily through the medium of a formal petition, beginning and ending with the formalities of such documents, but the right of any man, in any manner that he may see proper, to bring to the attention of Congress collectively, or to any Member of Congress, any matter that he thinks is one deserving the attention of Congress, one which in any manner affects his interest.

Mr. President, the enactment of law or the repeal of law are questions which in their practical operation do relate to the interest of the citizen, and because a man is a clerk in a Department or an officer of the Army or an officer of the Navy does not, in my opinion, deprive him of the great fundamental constitutional right which he has to appeal to Congress. I have never thought that the executive department, the head of it or any subordinate branch of it, had any right to step between the citizen and Congress and say that that citizen should not have direct communication by petition or remonstrance with Congress.

While it is true that the language of the Constitution is that guaranteeing to the people the right to assemble and petition Congress, the spirit of the Constitution does not necessarily limit it to assemblages. It involves the larger, broader right to which I have alluded—the right of every man to bring his matters to the attention of Congress in order that Congress may legislate with information and knowledge of the desires which may be given and expressed by that individual, or by any association of individuals or by any committee of such associations, either to enlarge or protect his rights and privileges or to redress his grievances.

Why is it, how is it, and whence is it, that the President of the United States has such dictatorial power that he may practically say to Congress, "You shall not hear from the citizen?" When the President of the United States says to a clerk in a Department, "You shall not speak to a Senator with regard to your matter; you shall not communicate with him as to any matter of legislation"—because that is the language of the order—it is practically saying to Congress, "You shall not hear from the citizen." It is not simply a restriction on the individual. It is an attempt, not so designed, doubtless, but practically, to curtail the power of Congress to hear from the individual as to what is to the interest of the individual, and as to the interest of each individual, in the aggregation of all the individuals of the country at large.

Mr. ALDRICH. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from Rhode Island?

Mr. BACON. I do.

Mr. ALDRICH. I have just had my attention called to the Senator's speech, and I was wondering whether this was a supplement to the speech which I listened to two or three days ago on the powers of the President. The Senator seems to have made some change in his views recently upon the powers of the President.

Mr. BACON. I think not. I suppose the Senator alludes to the fact that I advocated upon this floor the right of the President to summarily discharge soldiers from the Army whenever the good of the service required it, and especially whenever the public safety required it. That rests upon an entirely different proposition. I can not resume that argument and repeat it. I thought, from the vote of the Senator, that he had recognized that right on the part of the President, especially since the Senator is one of the principal spokesmen of the President on the floor of the Senate. I did not know that he had taken the position that the President did not have the power. If the Senator from Rhode Island in that discussion occupied a position hostile to the President, he did not so announce on the floor of the Senate. I imagine now, though, that he simply concealed the fact that he was not in exactly friendly relationship to the President on that particular matter.

Mr. ALDRICH rose.

Mr. BACON. Am I misrepresenting the Senator?

Mr. ALDRICH. I will say my only anxiety to-day was caused by the fear that the Senator from Georgia had deserted his former position.

Mr. BACON. No, sir. Even in that debate, when I was contending for the right of the President, not under his constitutional, indefeasible power, but under the laws of the land as they have been enacted by Congress, the Senator will remember the colloquy and the discussion between the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] and myself as to the exercise of one-man power and as to the great importance of the ultimate power being in Congress and not in any one man.

Mr. President, so far from what the Senator from Rhode Island says being true, the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER] twitted me in that debate with the fact that not only once, but many times he had heard me advocate upon the floor of the Senate that the ultimate power, generally speaking, is with Congress and not with the President. But, Mr. President, I suppose the remark was a pleasantry on the part of the Senator from Rhode Island. He simply desired to take this indirect way of having the announcement now made, after that discussion is over and the vote upon the measure taken, that he was not in friendly accord with the President upon the matter which we have been discussing for so long. I had supposed the Senator was on the other side; and, of course, I am glad if I have given him the opportunity to set himself right before the country, so that we now know where he then stood, although he did not inform us of it at the time. It will doubtless be a distinct shock to the country to know that the Senator from Rhode Island, the political leader of his party in the Senate, is not in all things in accord with the President.

Mr. President, I do not think it becomes us to take the attitude that, because of inconvenience or even of annoyance caused to us by the importunities of parties who may be interested in legislation pending or desired, therefore we are to endeavor to shelter ourselves behind an Executive order, because I regard these Executive orders, so far as I am able to judge of them—and I say it with the utmost respect—as improper, in that they are an invasion of the constitutional right of the citizen. I regard them as an invasion of the great fundamental right of petition.

As I was saying when I was interrupted, it has been a long time since the question of the right of petition has been a pressing matter of debate in Congress. Time was when it was, and all of us who are more or less familiar with the political history of the country will remember the great record made by that great and distinguished son of New England, John Quincy Adams, in defense of the right of petition. Mr. President, it is well that once in a while we should recur to the question of the importance of that right. While I have not thought that we could in a practical way interfere with these orders issued by the President, I have, I repeat, always thought they were improper orders.

Mr. President, we stand in a very peculiar relation—we who are here and who are complaining of the inconvenience and burden by reason of the fact that others who have interest in the legislation of Congress take up our time in bringing to our consideration their particular needs and wants.

When we ourselves have needs and wants we have only to act upon them. We do not have to burden anybody else. We have recently acted upon what was considered to be a great need and a great want of Senators and Representatives, in the increase of salary. Shall it be that while we can act upon these matters which relate to our own interests, other employees of the Government or other officers of the Government, if you please, shall be denied the right even to bring to our attention things which concern them, and which relate to their interests and to their comfort and to their necessities as greatly as these other matters related to those of our own?

Mr. McCUMBER. Mr. President—

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Georgia yield to the Senator from North Dakota?

Mr. BACON. I do.

Mr. McCUMBER. I simply desire to ask the Senator from Georgia if he claims that the order he refers to contravenes any section of the Constitution?

Mr. BACON. I say it contravenes the spirit of the Constitution, not the letter of it. I have said that.

Mr. McCUMBER. The Constitution provides, if I may take the time of the Senator, that Congress shall pass no law prohibiting the right of petition. It does not prevent the President from making such rules and regulations as he may see fit for the government of the employees of the Executive Departments. The constitutional provision prohibits Congress from passing a law denying the right of petition.

Mr. BACON. What is the section to which the Senator refers? Give me the page?

Mr. McCUMBER. The first amendment.

Mr. LODGE. The first amendment.

Mr. McCUMBER. It provides:

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof—

Mr. BACON. I have already quoted that article.

Mr. McCUMBER (continuing)— or abridging the right of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

I can not see that that would be in conflict with the right of the Executive authority to say to the employees of the Government that they shall not organize a conspiracy for the purpose of compelling Members of Congress to vote one way or the other upon any given subject.

Mr. BACON. I think the Senator uses an improper word when he speaks about organizing a conspiracy. Of course "conspiro" means to breathe together.

Mr. McCUMBER. I will say combining together.

Mr. BACON. Anything which is a concert of action, or an agreement of concert of action, is, according to the Latin derivation of the word, a conspiracy. But we all know what the general understanding of the word conspiracy is. It does not relate to anything of this kind.

But passing that, and going to the essential feature of the matter, I do not at all agree with my learned and distinguished friend as to the proper construction of this section of the Constitution. I want to say to him in all candor that with the highest estimate which I have for his ability as a lawyer I am utterly surprised that he should suggest that the intention of this amendment is to prohibit Congress from denying to parties the right to appeal to Congress, and at the same time to permit the Executive to erect a barrier between any part of the people and Congress.

Mr. McCUMBER. I am not saying, if the Senator will permit me, what the law ought to be.

Mr. BACON. I am speaking of what it is.

Mr. McCUMBER. I am speaking of what the constitutional provision is.

Mr. BACON. Yes.

Mr. McCUMBER. And I believe the Senator as a splendid lawyer would not contend that this provision in the Constitution meant anything other than a prohibition against Congress enacting such a law.

Mr. BACON. I beg the Senator's pardon. I had previously called attention to the fact that the matter for which I was contending was not within the letter of the Constitution, but with its spirit and evident intent, and I had quoted the language of the Constitution, which the Senator has since quoted, remarking that it was simply a prohibition against any prevention of the people assembling to petition Congress. But I had said that the spirit of the Constitution, the intention of the Constitution, was that there should be no barrier erected between the people and Congress, and no interference with their right to bring to the attention of Congress any matter which was thought to be important for the interests or the rights of the people or for their protection. The manifest intention of this amendment to the Constitution was to protect as inviolate the right of petition. When the prohibition against the invasion of such right was limited to Congress it was manifestly because there was no thought that the right to invade it would ever be claimed by the executive department or any officer thereof. So far as laws are concerned the great duty of the President is limited to the command, "He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed."

I scarcely know how to elaborate the proposition, even if it were advisable that I should consume time in an attempt to do so. It seems to me the plain and manifest intention of the Constitution to give free access to Congress and to Members of Congress on the part of all the people, to bring to their attention anything which they may think important that those charged with the high duty of making the law should know. These arbitrary orders of the President of the United States do not sound right at all in my ear. They have too much the sound to my ear of autocratic and unrestrained rule. They have too much the sound to my ear, on the other hand, of the assumption of the condition of underlings who can be ordered to be silent in matters which relate to things which concern them, and about which they ought, as freemen, have the right to talk, not only to the public, but to their representatives in the Senate and in the House of Representatives.

I do not like the sound of this order at all. It does not sound like the twentieth century to me. I will read it here again in this connection:

All officers and employees of the United States, of every description, serving in or under any of the Executive Departments—

That means over a hundred thousand men—I suspect nearer 200,000 men—in the United States—and whether so serving in or out of Washington, are hereby forbidden—

That is the language of the master to the servant—

are hereby forbidden, either directly or indirectly, individually or through associations, to solicit an increase of pay or to influence or attempt to influence in their own interest any other legislation whatever, either before Congress or its committees or in any way save through the heads of the Departments in or under which they serve, on penalty of dismissal from the Government service.

Mr. President, no master could issue any more peremptory or drastic order than that. That order, peremptory as it is, drastic as it is, invasive, as I believe it to be, of a fundamental right of every citizen of the United States, will reach possibly 200,000 men throughout the United States. Of course Senators may do as they see fit. I am simply expressing my own individual view about this matter. It has always grated on my ear, and while I never had the expectation of saying anything about it in the Senate, as the Senator from Maine has brought the matter here and has had this order recited in the proposed resolution, I am glad of the opportunity to enter my protest against it as an invasion of the fundamental rights of every man who has the rights of citizenship, and the right to enjoy the benefit and privileges of law under the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. President, here we have within the past few days, after consideration for the whole session, originated first in one House, failing to be acted upon there, and going back, and then returning to us again, after having been acted upon there, and then finally acted upon here, passed upon the question of our compensation. The Senator from Colorado [Mr. TELLER] says, sotto voce, that I voted against it. That is a fact, but it does not interfere in the slightest degree with the correctness of my present contention. We have had brought to our attention, through the public press and through other sources, the fact that the scale of compensation of employees in the service of the Government in Washington makes it extremely difficult for them to live in the way in which they are entitled to live. Now, that may be true or it may not be true, but I am strongly of the opinion that it is true. But under this order these 200,000 people, not only those in Washington, but those out of Washington, are prohibited from bringing to the attention of Congress the question whether or not they should have increased compensation just as we have voted to ourselves increased compensation. I do not know what would be the determination of Congress if this matter was brought up for its consideration and for a vote upon it, but I say it is a fundamental right of those people to go to a Representative or Senator and lay the matter before such Representative or such Senator in order that it may have proper consideration at the hands of Congress. It is not right, it is not fair, it is not in accord with equal rights under the law to say that they shall only communicate with their Senators and Representatives through the heads of Departments relative to such matters so vitally affecting their personal interests.

Mr. President, I am glad of the opportunity which has been thus unexpectedly presented to express my opinion in regard to the propriety and the constitutionality of these orders. I think the resolution had better go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the resolution?

Mr. BACON. I said I thought it had better go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under objection, the resolution will lie over.

NOTICES OF BUSINESS.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, a few moments ago the Senator from Indiana [Mr. BEVERIDGE] gave notice that on Monday next he would resume his speech on the question of child labor. He had conferred with me, I having given notice that I would call up an important bill on that day, and I was glad to accommodate him in that respect.

I now desire to say that I will call up that bill, if it be possible to do so, after the Senator from Indiana concludes his remarks, or, if not, after the Senator from Montana [Mr. CARTER] concludes the remarks of which he has given notice for Tuesday, provided there be no appropriation bill under consideration.

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President, I should like to suggest in connection with the statement just made that when the resolution to which the Senator from Montana [Mr. CARTER] has given notice he will speak is before the Senate, I sincerely hope it will remain there until the question involved, which is the question of the public lands of the United States and certain orders which have been issued suspending entry and patent, are thoroughly discussed and disposed of.

I desire at this time to give notice that at the conclusion of the remarks of the Senator from Montana upon that resolution, if no other business having the right of way is before the Senate, I will supplement those remarks with some others on my own part.

Mr. GALLINGER. In response to that statement, Mr. President, I desire to say that while I personally am always anxious to accommodate Senators in matters of this kind, I must insist that a bill providing for the extension of the lines of the street railways to the Union Station is of really more consequence than a speech. I hope the Senator from Idaho will not interfere with the consideration of that bill, but will reserve his speech on this resolution until after that bill has been considered on Tuesday.

Mr. HEYBURN. It was not my intention to be understood as intending to antagonize the measure referred to, but only to suggest a continuous discussion of the public lands question until some fruitful result is obtained. It will be easy enough, after that question is brought before the Senate by the Senator from Montana, to waive its consideration long enough to enable the measure suggested by the Senator from New Hampshire to be considered.

I desire to make a suggestion in connection with this matter. The subject involved in the resolution of the Senator from Montana, coupled with the President's message to us to which it is really directed, now upon the table, involves questions than which there are no more important before the Senate. The message referred to has suspended the issuance of patents upon more than 53,000 applications before the Department and has tied up in the recorder's office of the Government patents which have been approved, formulated, ready for signature and delivery to the number of more than 5,000. I can not imagine a more important matter, and it is only because of these extraordinary conditions that I have given notice. I hope the Senate may be willing to take up the consideration of the President's message in regard to the public lands immediately in connection with the resolution of the Senator from Montana.

MEMORIAL SERVICES ON THE LATE SENATOR GORMAN.

Mr. RAYNER. Mr. President, I desire to give notice that on next Friday, February 1, at half past 2 o'clock, I will submit resolutions commemorative of the public services of the late Senator Gorman. The services were to have taken place tomorrow, but have been unavoidably postponed.

UNIFORM INSURANCE LAW FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, which was read:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a report and subsequent letter from the superintendent of the department of insurance of the District of Columbia, and a letter of Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, of Boston, in reference thereto. I agree with the recommendation of Mr. Drake that what is needed is an insurance law for the District of Columbia on the lines of the so-called "Ames bill," already introduced in the House of Representatives, revising it so as to include in it all the desirable features of the so-called "uniform bill." With proper modifications after expert revision this bill could be enacted into a law so comprehensive and just that it would stand as a model of equity. I regret greatly that there is not national power to deal with this subject; but inasmuch as this seems at present to be the case, we should at least establish a model law in the District of Columbia.

I feel that the department of insurance of the District of Columbia should be made a bureau in the Department of Commerce and Labor. THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, January 24, 1907.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President, as I understand the message, it relates to a very comprehensive and complicated bill on the matter of insurance.

Mr. SPOONER. Will the Senator allow me?

Mr. GALLINGER. Certainly.

Mr. SPOONER. Where is that bill pending?

Mr. GALLINGER. In the other House at the present time, I think.

Mr. SPOONER. It has not come here yet?

Mr. GALLINGER. No; it has not come here yet. What I rose to state is that the Committee on the District of Columbia is greatly overburdened with work, having had during the present Congress between two and three hundred bills before it, and I would suggest, or, if necessary, move, that the message be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SPOONER. Mr. President, I hope that will not be done. What is proposed is a bill which relates entirely to the District of Columbia, and so far as appears to the Senate it involves no grave question nor any question of constitutional law. The Committee on the District of Columbia is evidently the proper committee to deal with it. The chairman alone, without any help from the committee, is eminently qualified to examine the bill and discover defects in it and remedy them. I, in the absence of the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, suggest that the message ought to go to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. GALLINGER. If the Senator will permit me, I will withdraw my suggestion and will accept the jurisdiction of the Committee on the District of Columbia.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The message will be referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia and printed.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. HALE. Now let us have the appropriation bill considered.

The Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 24541) making appropriations to supply additional urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, and for other purposes, which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

The Secretary read the bill.

The first amendment of the Committee on Appropriations was, on page 3, after line 20, to add to the bill the following:

JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION.

For the purpose of aiding in the payment of the cost of the construction, completion, and opening of the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition on Hampton Roads, Virginia, on April 26, 1907, the sum of $1,000,000 is hereby appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the said sum to be paid to the Jamestown Exposition Company on the request of the president of said company in amounts as follows: Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars upon the passage of this act, $250,000 during the month of January, $200,000 during the month of February, $200,000 during the month of March, and $100,000 during the month of April, 1907. That to insure the application of all said money to the purposes for which the same is appropriated, the Secretary of the Treasury shall appoint a suitable person or persons whose duty it shall be to supervise the disbursement of the same when paid, as herein provided, and to make a full and complete report thereof to him as he may require: Provided, That the amount hereby appropriated when paid to the Jamestown Exposition Company, as herein provided, shall constitute an indebtedness of the said company to the Government of the United States and shall be repaid by said company to the Treasury of the United States. That for the purpose of protecting the Government and insuring the repayment of said sum of $1,000,000 the Government shall have the first lien upon the gross receipts of said exposition company from all paid admissions to the grounds of said exposition and from all money received from concessions after the opening of said exposition. That before any part of this appropriation is paid, as hereinbefore provided, the said Jamestown Exposition Company shall execute, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Treasury, an instrument in writing giving and securing to the Government a first lien upon its said gross receipts, and said exposition company shall at the same time guarantee to the said Government, under suitable penalties, that the said gross receipts are then entirely free from liens, mortgages, or other incumbrances, and that it will not pledge or in any way encumber or dispose of the said receipts so as to injure or affect the right of the Government to first receive therefrom the amount to be returned to the Treasury, as herein provided. The said Jamestown Exposition Company shall repay into the Treasury of the United States the said sum of $1,000,000, as follows: On the 31st day of May, 1907, said Jamestown Exposition Company shall report to the Secretary of the Treasury in detail the total amount of all said gross receipts received by said company from April 26 to May 31, both inclusive, and 40 per cent of such receipts shall at the same time be paid to the Secretary of the Treasury, and thereafter, during said exposition and until the sum of $1,000,000 shall have been fully paid, as herein provided, a like detailed report of said gross receipts shall be made by said Jamestown Exposition Company on the 15th day and the last day of each month, respectively, and at the same time 40 per cent of said gross receipts shall be paid by the said company to said Secretary of the Treasury: Provided, That from and after the 15th day of July, 1907, and until the said sum of $1,000,000 shall have been fully paid, each of the said payments on the 15th and the last day of each and every month, respectively, shall not be less than $100,000: Provided, That if at any time after said exposition company has received the amount hereby appropriated it makes default in the application or in the repayment of said sum, or any part thereof, as herein required, then and in that case the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized by his agents and representatives, by him selected and appointed, to collect, receive, and control all the said gross receipts until the full sum of said $1,000,000 has been collected and repaid into the Treasury of the United States, as herein provided, and shall have access to and control of all books of accounts and contracts of said company. And said Secretary of the Treasury shall in such case first pay out of the money so collected such operating expenses as in his judgment and discretion are necessary and appropriate. In accepting the amount hereby appropriated the said Jamestown Exposition Company shall be taken and held to agree to all the terms and conditions upon which the same is made and upon which the same is to be repaid into the Treasury of the United States.

That April 26, 1907, is hereby fixed as the date for the opening of said celebration inaugurated by the act of Congress approved March 3, 1905, and that November 30, 1907, is hereby fixed as the date for the closing of the said celebration, and said dates shall apply to the participation of the United States and foreign countries in said celebration and in said exposition, as provided for by the acts of Congress approved March 3, 1905, and June 30, 1906.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 7, after line 15, to insert at the end of the preceding amendment the following:

Piers, Hampton Roads, Jamestown Exposition: For dredging necessary to complete the channel of approach to said piers from deep water in Hampton Roads and for dredging Bush Creek to accommodate the needs of the life-saving exhibit, $65,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

REVISION OF PENAL LAWS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated by the Secretary.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 7709) to revise, codify, and amend the penal laws of the United States.

Mr. FULTON. In view of the fact that there are a number of Senators interested in this measure who are not present today, I will not ask to take it up now, but I ask unanimous consent that it be temporarily laid aside.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Oregon asks unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AFFAIRS OF MEXICAN KICKAPOO INDIANS.

Mr. KEAN, from the Committee to Audit and Control the Contingent Expenses of the Senate, to whom was referred the resolution submitted by Mr. TELLER on the 16th instant, reported it without amendment, and it was considered by unanimous consent, and agreed to, as follows:

Resolved, That the Committee on Indian Affairs of the Senate be, and it hereby is, authorized and directed to fully investigate the affairs of the Mexican Kickapoo Indians and all affairs connected therewith, and that said committee be empowered to send for persons and papers and to subpoena witnesses and to administer oaths and to sit during the sessions of the Senate; and said committee shall make full and complete report, together with its recommendations, to the Senate. The necessary expenses of said investigation shall be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

H. R. 24640. An act making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1908, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

H. J. Res. 207. Joint resolution declaring Sturgeon Bay, Illinois, not navigable water, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

ARTHUR A. UNDERWOOD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 4350) for the relief of Arthur A. Underwood, which was, in line 4, to strike out all after "of" down to and including "appropriated," in line 5, and to insert "the allotment of the State of Wyoming under section 1661 of the Revised Statutes."

Mr. WARREN. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House of Representatives.

The motion was agreed to.

JOSEPH W. I. KEMPA.

The bill (H. R. 9212) for the relief of Joseph W. I. Kempa, executor of the last will and testament of William J. Grutza, deceased, was read the first time by its title.

Mr. SPOONER. A bill identical with that, as I remember it, was reported from the Committee on Finance and passed the Senate. I ask that this House bill be put on its passage.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read the bill.

The bill was read the second time at length, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause all assessment of inheritance tax against J. W. I. Kempa, executor of the last will and testament of William J. Grutza, deceased, to be abated; and that the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to refund the inheritance tax so collected by reason of the assessment made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue against the said estate, and that the said executor be relieved from the payment of any such tax which may have been attached to the said property by reason of the operation of the said law of June 13, 1898.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

M. A. JOHNSON.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 4819) for the relief of M. A. Johnson, which was, in line 4, to strike out all after the word "pay" down to and including "appropriated," in line 5, and to insert "out of the fund standing to the credit of the United States from deposits made by individuals for the survey of public lands."

Mr. SPOONER. I move that the Senate concur in the House amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

NATIONAL CHILD LABOR COMMITTEE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendments of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 6364) to incorporate the National Child Labor Committee, which were, on page 2, line 3, after "States," to insert "and of the District of Columbia;" and to strike out all of section 5 and insert:

Sec. 5. That the right to alter, amend, or repeal this act is hereby expressly reserved.

Mr. SPOONER. I move that the Senate nonconcur in the amendments made by the House of Representatives to the bill.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. SPOONER. I move that the Senate request a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, and that the conferees on the part of the Senate be appointed by the Chair.

The motion was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair finds that the bill was reported from the Committee on the Judiciary, and he appoints as conferees on the part of the Senate the Senator from Wisconsin [Mr. SPOONER], the Senator from Wyoming [Mr. CLARK], and the Senator from Georgia [Mr. BACON].

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BRIDGE IN MINNESOTA.

Mr. NELSON. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 7827) permitting the building of a railway bridge across the Mississippi River in Morrison County, State of Minnesota, to report it favorably with amendments, and I ask for its present consideration.

Mr. SPOONER. I should like to ask the Senator from Minnesota to state the location of this bridge.

Mr. NELSON. It is located in Minnesota, in Morrison County.

Mr. SPOONER. Wisconsin has nothing to do with it?

Mr. NELSON. No; nothing at all.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the bill was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The first amendment of the Committee on Commerce was, on page 1, line 13, after the word "Minnesota," to strike out the remainder of the section, in the following words:

Provided, That the plans for the construction of said bridge and appurtenant works shall be submitted to and approved by the Chief of Engineers and the Secretary of War before the commencement of the construction of such bridge: And provided further, That said Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railway Company, its successors or assigns, shall not deviate from such plans after such approval, either before or after the completion of the said bridge, unless the modification of said plans shall have previously been submitted to and received the approval of the Chief of Engineers and of the Secretary of War, and any changes in said bridge which the Secretary of War may at any time order in the interest of navigation shall be promptly made by said company at its own expense.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 2 in the following words:

Sec. 2. That in case any litigation arises from the building of said bridge or from the obstruction of said river by said bridge cases may be tried in the proper courts, as now provided for that purpose in the State of Minnesota, and in the courts of the United States: Provided, That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to repeal or modify any of the provisions of law now existing in reference to the protection of the navigation of rivers or to exempt said bridge from the operation of same.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 3 in the following words:

Sec. 3. That all railroad companies desiring the use of said bridge shall have and be entitled to equal rights and privileges relative to the passage of railway trains over the same and over the approaches thereto upon payment of a reasonable compensation for such use; and in case of disagreement between the parties in regard to the compensation to be paid or the conditions to be observed all matters at issue shall be determined by the Secretary of War.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to strike out section 4 in the following words:

Sec. 4. That any bridge built under this act and subject to its limitations shall be a lawful structure and shall be recognized and known as a post route, upon which no higher charge shall be made for the transmission of mails and the troops and munitions of war of the United States over the same than the rate per mile paid for the transportation over the railroad or approaches leading to the said bridge; and it shall enjoy the rights and privileges of other post-roads in the United States, and equal privileges in the use of said bridge shall be granted to all telegraph and telephone companies, and the United States shall have the right of way across said bridge and its approaches for postal, telegraph, and telephone purposes.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, after the word "Minnesota," in line 13, page 1, to insert "in accordance with the provisions of the act entitled 'An act to regulate the construction of bridges over navigable waters,' approved March 23, 1906."

The amendment was agreed to.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the sections following the sections stricken out will be renumbered.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CONSIDERATION OF UNOBJECTED PENSION BILLS, ETC.

Mr. McCUMBER. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of unobjected pension bills on the Calendar, and also the unobjected pension bills which were reported this morning, and that no further business be transacted by the Senate to-day.

Mr. WARREN. I ask the Senator to include in his request unobjected bills to correct military records.

Mr. McCUMBER. I will do so. I will include unobjected bills on the Calendar to correct military records.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from North Dakota asks unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the consideration of unobjected pension bills on the Calendar, and unobjected pension bills reported by the committee to-day, and also unobjected bills for the correction of military records, and that no further business be transacted to-day. Is there objection to the request? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered. The Secretary will report the first bill on the Calendar under the order just adopted.

EDWARD L. CARPENTER.

The bill (S. 1425) granting an increase of pension to Edward L. Carpenter was announced as first on the Calendar under the order.

Mr. McCUMBER. Inasmuch as a similar bill has been reported by the committee and has passed the Senate and the House, I move that this bill be indefinitely postponed.

The motion was agreed to.

ISAIAH HEYLIN McDONALD.

The bill (S. 1566) for the relief of Isaiah Heylin McDonald was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It authorizes the President to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint Isaiah Heylin McDonald a second lieutenant, mounted, in the Army of the United States, and to place him upon the retired list of the Army with that rank, on account of disabilities contracted in the service and line of duty, and the retired list is increased by one for this purpose; but no pay or allowance shall be paid him for any time he has been out of the service.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALONZO P. MANN.

The bill (S. 7768) granting an increase of pension to Alonzo P. Mann was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Alonzo P. Mann, late of Company A, Eighth Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HARRY A. YOUNG.

The bill (S. 7550) for the relief of Harry A. Young was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It provides that Harry A.
